

National Lutheran School Accreditation

King of Kings Early Childhood Education Ministries is accredited by National Lutheran School Accreditation (NLSA). Like most accrediting processes, NLSA has established a set of rigorous national standards that demonstrate school quality. Accredited schools must establish that they conform with required standards by completing an exhaustive self-study process. Even after a school has been accredited, school leaders must organize and implement a school improvement process that provides for ongoing improvement.

NLSA is unique because, in addition to standards that address educational quality, the school also evaluates its Christ-centered nature, based upon its defined purpose. The Spiritual dimension of Lutheran schools is the defining element that sets them apart and makes them a great place to grow.
